

The Internet is our entire economy

Over the last ten years the Internet has become the driving force in not only the US but the world economy. It works because it is an actual free market, consumers may choose whatever products they wish.

If we abandon net neutrality and allow tiering, mark my words, the whole thing will collapse.

Before allowing ISPs to charge more or less based on what sites a person wishes to visit, think about the concept of barriers to entry and what it does to entrepreneurs. I can't start the next google or microsoft if I have to pay comcast, AT&T, Verizon, TW, et al just to get my foot in the door.

Don't do it.
