

I believe that using a private company, such as Boat U.S., to issue an MMSI number is in the best interest of the FCC and the individual. I don't see any logical reason why this same MMSI number can't be used should the registrant need to apply for a FCC radio license.