

Our Small association able to make a difference

Twelve years ago I help start the National Association of Exclusive Buyer Agents. NAEBA is made up of companies where the broker owner and all agents in the company only represent buyers, thereby guaranteeing consumers no conflicts of interest with in-company listings.

This has dramatically improved the home-buying experience for millions of Americans. It would not have been possible to get the word out to consumers without net neutrality, as the big real estate franchises have a great deal more money than a small not-for-profit association.

Thank you for keeping the internet neutral.
