

I oppose the loosening of media ownership regulations. A diverse media is the only way to ensure the free and unfettered dissemination of information necessary for the nation as a whole to operate effectively and with fairness to all its citizens and for those citizens to be full participants in the governance of their country and their daily lives. Allowing media ownership to become constricted would reduce the number and variety of voices unduly to the benefit of a few.