

The Internet is My Buddy

With the existing Internet I have the ability and the opportunity to speak my mind, upload videos, listen to and share my music, and watch what others are doing, all over the globe. The thought that the FCC would allow any corporation to control Internet content is sickening. I remember the Chinese man who faced off against a tank after the Tiananmen Square massacre and I think, "What would he say if he knew we were willing to sell out our political and artistic freedoms so a few lowlife corporate types could make a few extra dollars by pandering to religious extremists, merchandisers, or political censors?" Please do not take us back to the Dark Ages by allowing service providers to control Net content.
