

Net Neutrality needs to stay

Lets say we let Comcast and Verizon and others limit what websites we view. Lets say they want to charge extra to view a site such as youtube.com. Whats to stop them from then the next month saying "well, everyone goes to google.com/yahoo.com/myspace.com. Lets charge extra for that"

Already comcast wont let people seed bittorrents. Bit torrent isnt just for pirating. it has a lot of legal uses. I know id be seriously pissed if i couldnt distribute my blogs, or videos, or audio. Im a starting comedian, and the only way i manage to reach the people who want to hear me, and the only chance i feel i have to getting a shot at making it big, is through letting people download my recordings and blogs.

If my ISP didnt let me seed my files, how else am I goin to have a chance?

A lot of new starting bands do this, other comedians, a lot more people than u could expect.

I also think that net neutrality is important to our democracy. China censors the net and what sites people can view. Is that whats gonna happen next here? If net neutrality is allowed to be infringed, whats to stop that from happening?
