

It is not difficult to obtain an MMSI number now, or it is difficult to program the radio with the number. I also have the ability to change the number in my radio 5 times before I am required to send it back to the manufacture. I think the FCC should take the currently assigned numbers and learn how to manipulate a database to incorporate currently assigned numbers to their system.