

Net neutrality is critical but only the beginning we need real broadband to become part of universal service in order to continue to call ourselves a democracy and be competitive in the global market.