

Comcast's blatant and deceptive blocking of peer-to-peer communications is exactly the problem millions of Americans have warned would occur without Net Neutrality protections.

The FCC must take serious and immediate action to put an abrupt end to this harmful practice and prevent other Internet service providers from following Comcast's example of discriminating against the free flow of online information.

The Internet is a vital engine for economic growth, civic participation and free speech. We simply can't allow corporate gatekeepers to smother these democratic communications by discriminating against new technologies, secretly interfering with Internet traffic and stifling innovation.

This company has overstepped their boundaries more than once in my own life and the lives of my neighbors. They are a company that needs to be stopped.

I was almost raped by a Comcast employee. After a year of trying to get a settlement for what I went through they still have him as an employee, though apparently not with the public, and they thought a small amount of money would heal my greivances. I would have been content to know he will never touch another girl again.

If there was a way to have cable without them I would in a heart beat. My phone and Internet are both with Verizon after going through what I did. Plus now I always have to have someone with me when they come to hook up the cable, since the event I am very nervous around any worker in my home.

It is more than what happened to me that matters; this company does not care! Though they do care about money, and becoming bigger, but they have vastly lost site of the public and the people they are providing services for.

I rarely hate, it is a strong word, but Comcast is not a company I will Ever respect. I am disabled, I cannot work, and unfortunately television and Internet are two things that keep me awake and occupied. If I was healthy I know I wouldn't even have cable, but the Internet is a vast part of my life, as a writer and someone who loves to learn, and also has to go to college by way of distance learning.

Their disrespect for laws, morals, and the rights of their consumers needs to be taken into context, examined thoroughly and they need to be made to clean up their act.

I appreciate you reading this and taking action. The public and myself deserve better. Thank you.
