

Do you think there are there any telecommunication or other media companies out there whose corporate heads, as individual Americans, care about the ideals embedded in America - both the country and its founding concepts - which include free speech and freedom from fear to express ideas?

Democracy-loving people should hope so; those who wish to keep our Republic should hope so, for the Internet is now the vehicle of choice - perhaps even of necessity, since the corporate mainstream media is no longer free, fair, or unbiased - by which so much communication is expedited.

Without Net Neutrality, we are that much further along the road to fascist-amerika. Do any of you in the FCC, as individual Americans, care about that? Do any of you in the FCC think that any corporate heads care about that? Apparently Comcast's corporate heads do not.

Comcast's blatant and deceptive blocking of peer-to-peer communications is exactly the problem that millions of Americans have warned would occur without Net Neutrality protections.

I write you honorable men and women of the FCC today strongly urging that you make it your priority to insure a free and neutral Internet.

The FCC must take serious and immediate action to put an immediate stop to Comcast's harmful practice - the spirit of which is out of the pages of dictatorships -and prevent them and other Internet service providers from following Comcast's example of discriminating against the free flow of online information.

The Internet is a vital engine for economic growth, civic participation and free speech. A Neutral Internet may threaten unscrupulous powers-that-be and well it should in a free, democratic Republic that the USA is supposed to be. The People must be able to speak Truth to authority, directly or indirectly, and today, that requires a Neutral Internet.

We simply cannot allow corporate gatekeepers to suppress these democratic communications by discriminating against new technologies, secretly interfering with Internet traffic and stifling innovation, not to mention illegally spying on the citizenry.

Rather than ignore, bend over for, or actually support those pseudo patriots - many of whom currently hold high positions in government and the very media corporations which we are discussing here, such as Comcast - I urge you in the FCC to uphold your own oaths and ideals and insure that Net Neutrality is protected and here to stay.

Thank you.
