

I

I have run an online community for the last five years. We are a small but exceptionally close bunch, holding semi-yearly informal gatherings in person in addition to staying connected through our message forums. We have members from all over the US and the world. All of our regular participators regularly cite our site as a source of emotional support and companionship-- there is even a happy couple living together, planning to marry, who met through us.

Please enforce Net Neutrality. Otherwise communities like mine will not survive. The Internet, our country, and the world will be poorer for it.
