Accompanying Statement of Calaveras Telephone Company

Calaveras Telephone Company has established operating procedures to ensure compliance with the Federal Communications Commission's rules with respect to privacy, and protection of Customer Proprietary Network Information ("CPNI"). Specific procedures taken include:

1. Calaveras Telephone Company has promulgated a written policy requiring all employees to refrain from disclosure of CPNI without prior authorization of the departmental supervisor and customer authentication in the event of a customer request for CPNI.
2. Calaveras Telephone Company has obtained the written acknowledgement of all employees that they understand and agree to comply with the policy described in 1., above.
3. Calaveras Telephone Company has instituted a policy of providing biannual training of all employees so that they understand and are able to comply with the policy described in 1., above, and of requiring each employee to execute a new acknowledgement and agreement as described in 2., above, on the same biannual basis.
4. Each new employee receives the training and executes the acknowledgement and agreement described in 3., above, before being permitted to access CPNI.
5. Calaveras Telephone Company places all computer terminals with the capability to access CPNI in areas where close supervision is possible.
6. Calaveras Telephone Company does not provide call detail record CPNI over the phone in the course of a customer initiated call.
7. All employees are required to document in writing all releases of call detail record CPNI, and the reason for the releases, whether the releases are to a customer, an affiliate, a contractor, or joint venture partner, or another entity.
8. Calaveras Telephone Company has adopted a written personnel policy stating that any employee releasing CPNI without authorization is subject to discipline up to and including termination of employment, and has advised each employee of that policy in writing.
9. Calaveras Telephone Company reviews all releases of call detail record CPNI no less frequently than once every month to ensure compliance with all policies and law.
10. Calaveras Telephone Company uses the opt-out system of obtaining customer consent for use of CPNI for marketing. Notices are sent to customers biannually and records of all notices and responses are maintained securely. A record of all CPNI releases to third parties for marketing purposes is securely maintained, and such releases may be made only with the express approval of the employee's supervisor.

Additionally, Calaveras Telephone Company has promulgated specific training targeting supervisors, employees with frequent public contact and all employees to ensure complete understanding of the importance of CPNI protections and ensure full compliance with the law.

Supervisor training was attended by each department head and included a full day detailed review of CPNI procedures. This training was conducted jointly by our outside law firm and CPA firm. Half day CPNI training was provided by a national telecom training entity for all CSR's and selected Installation & Repairmen. As a followup, all employees received online CPNI training and have passed an online test indicating general understanding of the importance of CPNI.

Calaveras Telephone Company received no customer complaints concerning disclosure of CPNI during 2007. Calaveras Telephone Company took no action against any data brokers or pretexters during 2007.
