

just plain mad

i live in boston and also have a home in a little town on the border of new hampshire. it is call warwick mass. it does not have any kind of internt service except hughs witch charges these people 80.00 dollars a month. they also have no cell tower witch means these people cannot have cell phones. they are told the towns people do not want this service not true. thesr are not rich people this town has no stores witch means the have to travel many miles to shop. to have deleveries brought to them. the only way people delevering can find them is by gps in ther trucks or cars because the is no cell service. all the little towns around have this service orange,athol,winchester n.h. but not warwick. this is a disgrace. and hughs network charges 80.00 dollars for service that is terrible and i know of 2 people that can afford to have it. know lets talk about fios they have been told they would have it by 2010. that is also a disgrace. although its better than boston all the cityies and towns around boston have fios but dedham and boston go figure. i guess the phone company thinks the same way about us (boston,dedham) as the feel about warwick when it come to fios.

i spend weekends and all summer in warwick and all my family lives there so i feel i am able to speak for this part of gods country.

thank you for listening and i hope this helps because this is a part of the counry that realy needs these services. pat copeland of boston and warwick
