

Freedom of speech is history unless you speak now!

Now after 60 years of working as a small business owner in America and paying all of my taxes in full in the construction business, still thinking as I was taught by my WW II parents that the truth will always prevail..... I have to say I still believe that. The difference is... in todays fast paced society if one waits for the truth it will be too late to do anything about it. The leaders want us to follow their ideas and by controlling the Internet they will be able to mold the words, deeds and actions of present and future generations...Is this what you want for your kids and their kids? If you do.. then

I think you are already under that influence and don't have the ability to see the forest for the trees.

Wake up America! Speak for yourself ! We should know right from wrong. If you don't know the difference just wait... and soon you will be told by corporate interests trying to control your thoughts, words and actions -somewhat like a puppet. Their only goal is more money in their pockets and a power trip of unbelievable proportions. Worship of the monetary unit is their belief at no matter what expense including immorality or any other devious idea as long as it increases their bottom line which in turn increases their power to deceive the masses.
