

I want to voice my opinion as a listener to all forms of radio broadcast daily.

I think that advisory boards for stations is that tell the station what needs to be broadcast or can't be broadcast is a violation of 1st amendment rights.

If people do not want to listen to a specific station for whatever reason they can turn the dial.

I think its great that I can turn on my radio flip through the channels and listen to mulitple views and opinions on different stations. I also like that I can turn off a station when I disagree.

More importantly I like that there are specfic stations that represent my views and beliefs and that they do not cater to all opinions.

I also do not agree with the requirement that all stations have 24 hour operators, as there are many lower budget stations that will not be able to continue to broadcast in the manner in which they currently broadcast.

I understand the good behind this requirement however there are enough stations that give news and updates that those who want to hear this can tune into it.

I think broadcasting interrupted everytime something might happen is an inconvienece to the entire audience.
