

Dear FCC Decision Makers,

I support the Commission's actions to help low power stations threatened with encroachment. LPFMs should have maximum flexibility to find new channels. A full power station should not be allowed to make a move that will displace an LPFM if there is no place else for the LPFM to go or the LPFM can only go to an inferior channel. It is time for the regulations to reflect better treatment of LPFMs. Really, LPFMs should not be secondary to full power stations in the first place, but these new protections are the least the FCC can do.
