

This proposal seems as if it is directly targeting Christians. Regardless of the intentions behind it, the effects will certainly comprise the freedom of speech to Christians specifically. I have to tell you that it bothers me that everytime I go to a gas station I'm confronted with pornography in the name of the First Amendment. Porno is not mentioned in the 1st Amend. BUT here the FCC is clearly violating two obvious rights that are SPECIFICALLY MENTIONED: free exercise of religious beliefs and freedom of speech. Christians vote too and whether your job depends directly upon the voters or whether you were appointed by an elected official; that really is food for thought.
