

I support the merger of XMSR Sirius. They entered this business in good faith as separate companies and competed with one another as well as with other (NAB) radio broadcasters. Now, as a stock holder in each company, along with being a subscriber to Sirius, I want this merger to go forward and be approved. This much delay is causing a lot of concern, especially when I see what a few elected officials have said: "Take your time" and the NAB demands a hearing. What, 15 months is not enough time to voice objections? Well, when is enough, enough? Kevin Martin said in December that a decision might come before the end of the year. Now he says the end of June. Come on, FCC, make a decision now! Thank You.
