

I'm an average internet-using college student. I think I relate to many college students when I say that I have the internet to thank for at least portions who I am today, and where I'll be tomorrow. I just wanted to quickly say that I am 100% for widely-available, free broadband internet access, in any form!!

Also, I wanted to express a doubt that the proposed filtering requirements would do their job 100%, or, if they do, they will block unintended information. Neither of these outcomes would be logical.
