SUNSHINE PERIOD

08-95

Chariman Martin and all, I am to talk with Embarq this afternoon to provide them with data to show why the FCC may be rushing the November 4 meeting and vote to benefit Verizon.

I can show how you and others at the FCC and all parties involved in the Verizon-Alltel deal have been aware of the expected class action and other litigation that could cost Verizon billions and cause them to be unable to afford this deal. With such documents, emails and other correspondence, the FCC and copied parties and others will surely be called into question on such actions to rush the vote and apparently not consider the data that I have provided. This does not look good. I will let you answer as to the reasons behind this.

Embarq and StoptheFCCvote have a real interest in all of this and will likely be able to cause a lot of people to question the FCC.

I thought I would make you aware of this and possibly be able to work with you prior to talking with these others and providing documentation to confirm such possible questions. If you have talked with Verizon and arranged with them for such litigation to be avoided, please let me know right away. I expect to talk with these others beginning around 3pm today

thanks

Randy and Bob, the Verizon-Alltel deal is the major vote that is of concern.

As I told you I am to talk with media this afternoon. This group is very interested in the data I have and why the FCC may be trying to rush the Verizon-Alltel deal through.

I will be talking with them and providing them copies of documents, emails and other data to show how the FCC has had knowledge that this can be a potentially very negative deal for the millions of customers and others involved.

No. of Copies rec'd 0
List ABCDE

I assume since I have not heard from you, there are no objections.

I am to talk with them at 3pm to provide details, They will help make this data nationally known.

I wanted to make sure you understand the full impact of this.

any questions let me know right away.

you know they will use my data to further fight the FCC and possibly even show a conflict of interest.

thanks

Brenda Smith
