To Whom It May Concern:

I cannot express how please I was to hear that the FCC will be meeting in the near future to consider a plan to provide broadband internet access with filters available to eliminate porn and other smut from entering your homes. I am writing to encourage you to expedite this procedure in to avoid the probability that the liberals in the next administration will attempt to block such a move. It is so important to get it done NOW!

Thank you,

Stephen and Denna Ray

Dear Commissioner,

I respectfully urge you, on behalf of my family, to support Chairman Martin's porn-free internet proposal.

As an American who respects all of our constitutional rights, I expect expressions of those rights to never become license. Pornography, it can be argued is one of those expressions that has crossed the line of freedom used irresponsibly. No child or adult should have to tolerate the perverse content that is increasingly harming our society by means of our publicly controlled communications systems. We rely on the stewards and benefactors of the communications infrastructure to establish and enforce standards for the welfare of all of society. Free wireless internet access with pornography free content is a much needed solution that would provide the relief millions of decent American families need today.

Thank you for your support on this proposal.

Sincerely,

Dear Commissioner,

Please VOTE for the pornography-free wireless Internet service for all Americans!

I work with many individuals who are unwantedly addicted to internet pornography. The statistics of individuals suffering from such an addiction is staggering. Such an internet services (porn-free) would be a great aid to many internet-porn-addicts.

Please consider this a vote for the mental health of many many Americans.

God bless America. God bless you,

Sincerely,

Dr. Lock

Dear FCC,

I want to emphatically declare to you that I am in full support of the plan to offer fee-free, porn-free broadband on which you are scheduled to vote on December 18th. A strong correlation between use of pornography and reprobate behavior including criminal activity has been detected in numerous studies conducted by psychologists and sociologists. Offering this service fee-free would not only make the broadband accessible to low-income families but would induce consumers to choose the porn-free service over the alternatives, thereby abating the potential for pornography becoming more prevalent.

This is not a matter of restricting anyone's preferences; rather it is a matter of inducing the public to choose something that has less potential to provoke sociological and psychological disintegration. Again, please vote in favor of the plan!

Thank you,

Please support the clean wireless web plan to be voted upon by the FCC this month. I have nieces and nephews that I would love to protect. Help protect all our children and citizens from the seductive and detrimental influence of pornography and help protect our children from pedophiles. My family and I would be forever grateful for this one act.

Ada (Brownell) writes:

Mr. Martin, bless you! I've so appreciated your work toward decency, and now am exceedingly distressed that Congress has given you grief about your work.

I've prayed for you before, but I pray now the Lord will bless you and your family immensely, and use you to point our youth away from indecency and toward rewarding lives that come from good moral values rooted in the Ten Commandments.

A former newspaper reporter, I firmly believe in First Amendment Rights, but I don't believe in forcing people who object to obscenity to have to subsidize when we subscribe to cable TV. I didn't really think that "cafeteria" (I can't remember the term you used) type programming would fly where each subscriber could choose the desired channels. What I suggest is that each cable provider offer at least one family-friendly package that has 24-hour news, weather, and channels with a majority of G- and PG-rated programming.

Anyway, thanks for your good work and for trying your best to make America better. You sowed some good seed. Perhaps there will be a harvest yet.

Blessings,
Ada Brownell
