

We use a TV guardian to limit the profanity that we hear. Even commercials in prime time use language we don't approve of and don't want others to hear. Having the flexibility to add offensive words to the blocked list would be preferable, and having the option to take off the blocking when listening to religious programming is necessary. Whether it is a separate piece of equipment as we have now or a built in feature to the broadcast equipment, we appreciate having the option to filter the language we hear.
