

Our family has purchased a TV Guardian for every single TV in our home. It has made a huge difference in our family to have some measure of control over what comes through our TV. It is disappointing, at best, that many in our country opt for using foul and disrespectful language in their communication without regard for how others are affected by it. I believe TV Guardians should not only be required on all electronic devices, but that the government should not allow our freedom of speech to include things that perpetuate the decline of the families and society. We will continue to use TV Guardians and believe it is a good product.
