

Closed-captioning is accurate enough for the TVGuardian technology to be useful. It would be very useful for internet and television. TVGuardian makes it possible for our children to be able to watch closed-captioned movies and television shows without having to listen to foul language. It would be better if television networks provided TVGuardian over their internet broadcasts as well because we also watch many TV shows over the internet (on demand).