

TVGuardian has changed the way me and my family watch movies. We are a very conservative Christian family and we don't like foul language at all. If the movie doesn't have caption and we know there is going to be language in it we won't watch the movie. We would like this technology more widely available. Closed-captioning is really accurate we have 5 people in our house and then we have my older sister and her family when they come over and the house gets loud we really enjoy the CC. We are disappointed to see that more companies are not adding these to their products when they make them so we have to purchase it separately. It would be really nice if they were required to put it in. You always have the option to turn it off. I have a video iPod and I watch videos from Netflix over the internet it would be nice if TVGuardian was made available for these options. Please consider making this mandatory.
