

I have had a tvguardian for the past 8 years. I have been able to recommend it to many family and friends who prefer to watch tv or videos without the foul language. I do not have children yet but all my friends who do use this device to protect their children from words that are inappropriate for them to hear. It is sad that even G and PG rated movies need a filter like the tvguardian. However, I am thankful that children and adults can enjoy video entertainment in a more suitable way. The closed caption does not work 100% but it helps 99% of the time and that is definitely worth it. It's very disappointing to rent a video and have to turn it off because it is not closed captioned and the language is unacceptable to allow into my home. Unfortunately without a VCR I have not been able to use the tvguardian for my cable connection so that has limited the opportunity to watch tv programs. At times I do watch tv programs or movies on the internet, computer, or iPod and it would be very helpful if these items were equipped with the tvguardian technology. Entertainment via the television, dvds, blue-ray, computers, and iPods would be greatly benefited by having this avenue of filtering. I know family, friends, and of course myself who would be willing and grateful to pay for the services of tvguardian through cable or satellite. Thank you for your time.
