RE: TV Guardian

Should products like TV Guardian be required in a wide spectrum of video products?

My name is Shelisa Cooper, I am a medical professional and I have personally purchased equipment such as TV guardian and Protectv for years. I have purchased VCR's and DVD players that have TVG as part of the unit because I personally love entertainment and movies and don't personally like all the languages used to tell stories. I believe that TVG would be beneficial to families that don't want to restrict their children from entertainment but just want to diminish the amount of foil language that they would otherwise be exposed. I personally would love to have the option to purchase any device that would give me that option. It's is my opinion that its all about having a choice. I hope that you would consider this as just an option to diminish offensive language as you have on network and cable TV without really censoring the movie or program itself.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Shelisa Cooper
