

I have been using TV Guardian and ClearPlay products for over five years. I am very pleased with the "close caption" guided products for cleaning up the needless foul language presented in modern films. The ability to adjust the level of control is simple and easy to use. With ClearPlay, films can be cleaned up in both audio and visual without tampering with the film itself. It is the equivalent of having a vigilant parent at a fast acting remote control. Here again, the control is simple to use.

It is absurd how much unnecessary audio and visual junk is inserted into film. It is as if the film industry is deliberately assaulting the audience. With TV Guardian and ClearPlay products, my family and several of our friends' families can enjoy entertainment without being verbally and visually abused in the process.
