

With the availability of foul language filtering technology that can be implemented on an individual basis, there is no excuse for that technology not to be offered so that each family can choose the degree of protection it wishes against the increasing trend toward offensive content on television and in movies.