

We want foul language filtering technology on TV, cable, satellite and other devices that show TV programs and movies. The software for this technology must be built into the cable/satellite boxes and TVs to work with HD televisions. It is being offered to cable and satellite companies for free -- those that want to use it can pay a small fee for it -- and these companies have the ability to download the software into most existing cable/satellite boxes... still, the industry refuses to give families this individual control. This solution seems pretty simple and a "win, win" for both families and the industry.

We want control over the language that is heard on the TV's in our own home! Cable and satellite companies should give parents the option of using these parenting tools just because it's good business. This technology will even increase profits for them since filtering out language makes more TV shows and movies OK for family viewing. Yet, a handful of powerful media companies are fighting to keep this technology from us.

FCC, please let the free market work so our family has a choice. It's profitable for both sides.
