

The internet access I now have at home is so poor, it's unusable. I have to go outside of home to use the internet. My phone company, Verizon, has told me that all they have to do is provide voice service and that is all they will provide as I'm in a rural area. This is an area where the government should act. To fully participate in the technology of the 21st century, we need broadband internet available to all of the citizens of the USA...or at least to everyone on the electrical/phone grid that currently exists.
