

I would like to raise an issue that I feel has been getting worse. I pay a lot of money to have cable TV. I even pay an additional fee to have channels in high definition. For a long time now, we have had to watch those channels with advertisements on the bottom of the screen. They are not only distracting but take up half the screen. At one point, there was a person who crossed from the top of the screen to the bottom, looked at us and then popped back up. It was an advertisement for another show. I think these have gone too far. If I pay to watch a show, I don't want to have something on the lower half of the screen telling me what is coming up next. I will look at the guide if I want to know. It is there throughout the entire program and very distracting. Is there anything that can be done about this?
