

As a mother of two young children, I'm appalled at the idea of BusRadio. This is not in the best interest of our children. I'm extremely disturbed by the concept of forced advertisements reaching these young minds, many of them too young to process such information critically. Also, it interferes with a parent's right to raise their children as they see fit and choose which media their children are exposed to. I'm very, very concerned and I beg of the government to do the right thing and outlaw this program which hurts our children so much.

Laura Pedulli