

The DTV boondoggle! I now have $100.00 in DTV reception equipment sitting on top of my TV and I don't have the quality of reception that I had, for 50+ years, with my good old "rabbit ears"! I can no longer receive Channel 6 WPVI (even after rescanning this AM) or Channel 12 WHYI and the other local channels are obscured with kalidoscopic interference and freezing, to the point of being unwatchable. The "additional" channels that I now (barely) receive are of less than interesting or entertaining content, for the most part. Is this the FCC's idea of progress? Or, is it a plan, in collusion with the pay TV providers, to eliminate free access TV? Just another attempt by the federal government to mandate changes, to improve our wretched lives, for which no one asked! The DTV switch was, at the least, technologically premature or, at worst, an abject failure!
