

Touch tell From Houston Tx.

Promises to deliver 85 to Guatemala but only delivers 40%.

All the prepaid phone cards are same.

Why are prepaid phone cards companies allowed to deactivate phone cards which have been paid? Is it legal to do that? Because when the companies are allowed to do it, sometimes they affect innocent people who don't have anything to do directly or indirectly. As a result, there are innocent people who are victims of this scam. My recommendation for the FCC is that once the prepaid phone cards are activated, it shall be against the law to turn them off. Otherwise, it should be considered theft because they are taking by force and against somebody's

Will. Of course, it shall be illegal to do that without any court order!