

The FCC should rescind the Part 15 authority for BPL or relinquish the responsibility for the husbandry of the radio spectrum for radiocommunication to another body capable and willing to do so.

The FCC admits BPL causes interference, by prohibiting its use in many bands and locations, and renders other uses subject to interference in favor of this non-radio use that contributes little to national broadband goals. The FCC should encourage the electrical industry to provide other significant broadband media such as fiber