

I think its ridiculous that these companies such as correctional billing services can block consumers numbers especially knowing that it is illegal to do. Even after I read them the legal documentation that Conscall provided me with, they said there was nothing they could do and that I had to change the number on the account. It cost more money for me being that I didn't have a phone number with the area code that I needed to have in order to receive cheaper calls through correctional billing services. It seems as if these people can get away with anything. Something needs to happen to stop these people, or maybe Americans shouldn't be receiving services from an agency located in Mexico, that doesn't seem to care about American laws. I know for a fact that Correctional Billing Services main office is located in Mexico, when I asked them for a tax Id number or a physical address to their company they said they couldn't disclose that information to me, but they could provide me with a p.o box address. I really hope something can be done about these people and their illegal ways.
