

My husband and I live out in the country. We have a digital tv. We have a house antenna. There are some days, we don't have any problems with our reception. Other days, it would be working ok and then it starts breaking up and we lose the signal. It doesn't matter what channel we are watching. When we had analog, the picture came in real good with our antenna. We are getting tired of this. Will it ever get better? We can't even watch our shows sometimes. I wish analog was back. We didn't have any problems then. I hope it gets better. I tried emailing the stations but nobody responded. Sometimes they say it's our antenna. but like i said analog came in good with the same antenna.
