

I have been an unwilling customer of OpenBand since Jan 2009, the company has managed to get a century of locked in service to the Broadlands area. The company would be less hated if it provided simple amenities that other companies give for free when there is competition, but since there is no competition OpenBand has no intention of offering any modern day technology without raping my wallet.