

Why is Comcast allowed to advertise that they offer way higher speeds on the internet than they really offer--at least in our area? My connection with them is barely faster than dial up. Now I find out it is the lowest possible broadband speed. They certainly mislead the public.