

The Net needs to remain neutral. To allow a few companies to control internet content or accessibility is an outrage and a violation of the free speech sacred to Americans and people everywhere. It would be like telling a newspaper what it can and can't publish. And since newspspers themselves are waning in popularity, the internet may end as our one last bastian of free speech. Keep the internet free, independent and neutral.