

Freedom communication of ideas and information has always been imperative to the spreading knowledge of new technologies and skills, and to conducting a democratic form of society. Curtailing free communication on the new medium of the Internet can not have any but disastrous effects on American economy, technology, education, and our democratic institutions.

Please oppose any actions that would curtail freedom of internet communication.