

Hello, Technology to enable VOIP over cellular networks is just starting to emerge. This has the potential to give you completely unlimited talk time for both domestic and international calls on your cell phone. If allowed to do so, the cellular carriers will block VOIP services on their networks because they want to force everyone to keep using minutes and paying outrageous overage fees. Please support Net Neutrality so that great new technologies like VOIP over cellular can flourish.

Thank you for your consideration.

Regards,
David Marshall
