

Without net neutrality, people like Stephen Fry cannot share information about a real person suffering with a real disorder. Stephen Fry's youtube video may save lives. Do not under estimate the power of neutrality on the internet. Stephen Fry is just one example and the best one I could come up with at the moment to share. Sure you can read about bipolar disorder on the government website but it is not the same as the feeling that is conveyed in Stephen's spoken heartfelt words. I am for Net Neutrality.
