

With fewer and fewer big corporations taking control of our news media, net neutrality is essential for the well being of a democratic America.