

Please stand up to the phone and cable companies and their phony front groups, and keep the Internet free and open. Please ignore the many phony comments from these corporations calling for an end to Net Neutrality. I rely on the free and open Internet every day, both at work and at home, in participating in citizen democracy, and in work-related advocacy. We need an Internet that allows us to go where we want, when we want to.

I urge you to protect Net Neutrality. It is critical to our rights of freedom of speech. Phone and cable companies should have no role as the Internet's so call gatekeepers. There should be no tolls. To be discriminated against for not paying their tolls for this unneeded forced service would be the same as having one's communications blacklisted on the Internet.
