

Dear Congressional representative: I am just a single person and have only a small voice compared to the large companies who can afford inside access to decision-makers such as yourself. I am asking that you represent the average citizen who wants the internet to remain neutral and beyond the unilateral control of major companies such as ComCast and ATT. If all that was done was to force ISPs to disclose the actions they take to block content, I would consider that an acceptable compromise.