

The internet is a powerful tool for realizing the democratic ideals of our nation. The FCC must show its support for American democratic principles in maintaining internet neutrality rather than allow corporate media interests to infiltrate this unique form of interactive communication. The internet has become an integral part of our modern civil liberties.