

Ladies and Gentlemen of the FCC: The freedom of the people to generate and access information should never be sacrificed for the convenience of large companies and monopolies. Even if ruled against, Internet service providers will still find a way to control the freedom of their customers with their unnecessary "service agreements", as they have in the past.