

It is hard not to be cynical these days, and think that government is only there helping big corporations to enrich themselves...people be damned! Big Business interests seem to be the only ones that count. Having the internet as a truly level playing field would help thousands of small businesses compete, promote innovation, and give consumers the widest possible choice. If access is limited by the highest bidder, or the biggest player, you stifle innovation, limit choice, and censor the public.

More importantly, allowing a few large corporations to become gate keepers, invites corruption, and abuse. Any legitimate corporation, acting in their own self interest, must 'work' a market advantage for the maximum benefit of their shareholders, or face litigation for failing to do so.

Only Government Regulation can ensure competition, open access, and the expansion of the most important piece of new technology that has hit the market in the last 20 years. Unfettered "market forces", will only ensure that a few major players monopolize this new, and developing technology. Please protect this vital, new technology from being exploited. Vote for true internet neutrality. Vote for freedom.
